We reiterated to the people the importance of segregating the garbage before throwing it away. While we collected garbage from the riverside, we asked people to identify the particular items that could have easily contaminated the river.

One of the five major rivers originating from Pune district, Mula has lost its glory because of increasing water pollution and a lack of conservation efforts from the authorities. But some stretches of the river are seeing a revival through the efforts of a group of volunteers that are cleaning up the banks of the river and also improving the ecosystem of the water body.
